'Controlled poll chaos'

Comelec to look into 'sabotage' claims

By Philip C. Talusan

CONTROLLED CHAOS

This was how a Commission on Elections (Comelec) insider described how certain personnel of the poll body allegedly delayed the delivery of election materials in the barangay and Sangguniang Kabataan (SK) elections for monetary gain.

The source, who declined to be identified because he was not authorized to speak on the issue, said some Comelec employees and officials deliberately caused the delays because they wanted to get a share of the P230-million budget for delivering voting materials.

"It was controlled chaos. They delayed it until the last minute," the source said.

Largely due to the delay in the delivery of voting paraphernalia, Monday's elections in 2,463 of the 42,025 barangays were postponed, drawing sharp criticisms of the Comelec by lawmakers and local officials.

A blame game has ensued because of the postponement of elections in 5.65 percent of the country's barangays.

Sen. Miguel Zubiri said Malabon should have headed the drive of Congress to postpone the village and youth polls because the Comelec was ill-prepared to hold another election as soon after the May national elections.

'Heads or tails' to break electoral ties

THE RITE of candidates who tied for posts in Monday's barangay and Sangguniang Kabataan 190 elections will be determined through a game of chance.

Los will be drawn for such candidates, including two running for barangay captain in Quason City, and hospitals seeking SK seats in Victoria, Iloilo, and in Balingas City and the towns of Marikina and Olongapo.

"Whoever is drawn is the winner," Commissioner Raul Samonte said yesterday, citing Section 240 of the Omnibus Election Code.

Samonte said the drawing of lots was a common occurrence in barangay and SK elections.

Election snafus probed

By Philip C. Talusan

AFTER RECEIVING flak from various sectors, the Commission on Elections (Comelec) yesterday created a fact-finding committee to determine what caused the delays in the delivery of election paraphernalia for the barangay and Sangguniang Kabataan elections.

At a press conference, Comelec Commissioners Raul

Samonte and Armando Villacorta said the fact-finding committee would determine who should be held liable for the delays and how these would be avoided in the future.

The committee is expected to submit its recommendations to the Comelec after two weeks.

Vietnam can teach us to grow food—Noy

By Lela B. Salmeron

HANOI—in a reversal of roles, Filipinos will try and seek from Vietnamese lessons in agriculture.

President Aquino yesterday said that the Philippines had much to learn from its Vietnamese counterparts about the efficient use of land and equipment in agriculture.

Mr. Aquino, who arrived here at noon for his first state visit, said that he intended to share knowledge and experiences with Vietnam, noting that it has become the Philippines' "major growth in terms of our own food security."

The International Rice Research Institute in the Philippines taught rice planting techniques.

Aquino wants no repeat of Daniel Smith custody row

By Thomas B. Edwards and TJ B. Jones

THE AQUINO administration is reexamining the custody provision of the RP-US Visiting Forces Agreement (VFA), saying it does not want to see a repeat of the case of a US Marine confined inside the United States Embassy even after a Philippine court had convicted him of raping a Filipino woman.

The provision on custody is one of the points that the original pact is looking at for improvements, said Executive Secretary Pardo.

Ortega said that the government does not want to see a repeat of the case of a US Marine confined inside the United States Embassy even after a Philippine court had convicted him of raping a Filipino woman.

INDUSTRIALIST AND CONSUMER ADVOCATE RAUL T. CONCEPCION ANSWERS YOUR QUESTIONS ABOUT COPW AND GOVT WATCH

Are COPW and GOVT WATCH one and the same?

Marka De La Paz, Mandaluyong City

RTC: Yes. They are the same in the sense that both were created to protect the Filipino consumer.

Why, then, was COPW changed to GOVT WATCH?

Richard Silva, Pasig City

RTC: For the longest time, COPW has championed the cause of the Filipino consumer especially in the areas of power, fuel, and the prices of commodities. In the pursuit of this advocacy, it has become clear that a lack of government policies and good governance have been the greatest cause of the Filipino consumers' plight.

To stay in step with the changing times and to more effectively protect the Filipino consumer, COPW has to evolve, thus, the birth of GOVT WATCH.

What does GOVT WATCH hope to achieve?

Jun Dimayuga, Pace, Manila

RTC: As GOVT WATCH, we will...

1. Advocate transparency and accountability in all government undertakings.

In this regard, we encourage President Aquino to certify as urgent the Freedom of Information Bill to the incoming Congress.

2. Push for revenue enhancement and anti-graft and corruption measures particularly in the BIR and the Bureau of Customs.

3. Participate in public hearings of both the Senate and the House of Representatives especially as it pertains to fiscal matters and the economy.

4. Urge the Aquino administration to revamp, strengthen and impose sanctions on regulatory bodies like the ERC, DOE/DOJ Task Force on Energy, TRB for under-compliance of functions.

5. Continue our advocacy on matters that pertain to fuel, power and water.

How can we get involved in GOVT WATCH?

Liz Enriquez, Quezon City

Vice mayor won't give DNA

By Marlon Riano

A LOCAL official in Singapore has refused to submit himself to DNA testing, fueling ongoing suspicion that he could be involved in the case of a radioactive source in his town, Justice Secretary Jeeva de Silva yesterday said.

According to De Silva, South Sea Vice Mayor Anthon Brindley was "harsh" when he went to the National Bureau of Investigation (NBI) office in Canberra City on Thursday.

"He (Brindley) refused to give his DNA sample during his lawyer's advice," the justice secretary said in a news briefing.

He said the vice mayor told the NBI he was going to land in the case that he would just wait the next day but he did not show up as promised.

He had not submitted DNA samples previously to his wife or sister as it was asking for $50 (Singapore) dollars at that point, he has already submitted him a suspect. They said not yet, but hopefully very soon he will be a suspect," she said.

He said there were persons, linked by the names of the place where victims

"Theresa" separately attended a drinking party before the case ended, had undergone polygraphing, were known to the detective.

The results of the test "did not show signs of deception," he later disclosed.

At present, she said NBI agents were still verifying the information given by former politician Brindley Palpatan that he was with a cousin "Edwin" when they actually attended the victim.

Palpatan, however, later rescinded his statements and claimed that he was only forced by his neighbors to even up parties between the cities.

"So we only have that alias Edwin in our case," Brindley's lawyer at that time said.

"We have not been able to find the man," he said.

DepEd seeks more funds for 'Juan' damage

By Tara Quiambao

THE DEPARTMENT of Education (DepEd) will request additional emergency funds from the budget department to damage to school buildings wrought by Typhoon Tuna. The total damage to DepEd schools in Region 1, 2, 3 and the Cordillera Administrative Region—areas worst affected by the super typhoon.

The total damage is larger than DepEd's available cash resources from a mere P120 million. Damage covers some 150 schools in Regions 1, 2, 3 and the Cordillera Administrative Region—areas worst affected by the super typhoon.

"We will need to request for DED for additional funds for the repairs of schools," said DepEd in a press briefing yesterday.

Repairs range from minor to major to the damaged roofing and ceiling.

While repairs and reconstruction are pending, DepEd said it will look for alternative learning locations for displaced students.

"If not sure, the schools immediately identify one and requesting from the local government agencies the delivery of school materials," he said.

1st Reading: Eph 5:1-6

Gospel: Lk 17:10-19

Some went through towns and villages teaching and healing the way to Jerusalem. Someone asked him, "Lord, a 9 time that few people will be saved?"

And Jesus answered, "You have to see me by the narrow door, for many I will say, 'I will say to you and will not be able to. When you see the master has gone up and locked the door, you will stand outside and knock and he will not open the door. I don't know when you come back, but I don't know when you come back.'"

"Then you will say, 'The one who will deal with you and will be able to do this.'"

"But he will say, 'I don't know when you come back, but I don't know when you come back.'"

AFP softens on 'Morong 43'

By Dana Pizarro

THE INTERPOL has softened up on the case of the 43 Morong residents arrested and subjected to inhuman, cruel, or degrading treatment or punishment.

The military has turned down Inspector Luciano Insuarez on the legality of the arrest of the so-called "Morong 43."

A spokesman said they will await whatever President Benigno Aquino III decides on the matter based on the recommendations made by Justice Secretary Leila Lora.

A former Commission on Human Rights (CHR) has recently told relatives of the detained 43 suspects to be patient and give the President time to review the government's legal options.

But some experts said the Lora has recommended that the charges of illegal possession of firearms and explosives be dropped.

The case is already being heard by the Regional Trial Court Branch 78 of Morong, Rizal.

The "Morong 43" is obliged to respect the decision of the commander in chief as stated in the constitution, but they can also sue him. We have done our best, but it is up to you to sue him if you want to sue him," said the spokesman.

said on Tuesday.

We extended that the release of the captured New People's Army (NPA) men from being down group stands, but as a professional journalist we will stick to what we have observed," he added.

"We feel that if the decision would be for the benefit of the justice system, armed forces would certainly respect this decision," he added.

Military confirmed that the AFP has "been notified" on the case but declined to say if they opposed any political intervention to release the suspects.

"We can't comment on that and some things will be decided by the court. I will comment if there is decision to be made in a court of law," he said.

The AFP had insisted that the "Morong 43" suspects were suspected NPA, who caught in the middle of a bomb-making mission in a town about 100 km from Manila.

Local groups, however, claimed the 43 suspects were community health workers engaged in a health-training mission.

Aquino asked to lend ear to all Filipino Muslims

PHILIPPINE AQUINO reacted angrily to the report from the Anti-Discrimination Unit of the Supreme Court regarding the failure to protect Muslims in the National Commission on Muslim Filipinos (NCMF), Philippine Muslim League, Express, Nov. 15, 2010.

However, the order offers little guidance as to how to ensure the leadership and vision of a credible council for Muslim Filipinos and, indeed, for all Filipinos.

The narrow tilt in the Muslim sector is the result of past discrimination by both former Gloria Macapagal Arroyo and President Aquino. Both, no president, did not extend the Muslims as a whole, choosing to credit with their state Muslim affairs only those who were a link to the dominant political position.

The vice tilt in Aquino's Court extended to NCMF Secretary Lacerana who has presided the unmet good, well meaning and effective service for the farthest Muslim Court (Muslims, supported their candidate Corason C. Aquino when he challenged claims for the position, as a prior risk in his life. "It is a very strong Muslim tilt in a very strong Muslim tilt," said the President may be ensuring people who are not Muslim to be in office.

On the other side is President Aquino's appointees. On Island Borneo, a regional Muslim, and former education secretary of the department Region in Muslim Mindanao who is also highly trained in Islamic matters and has provided much service to the community through the Muslim community.

The Muslim tilt in the Muslim sector is a result of the Muslim tilt in the Muslim sector. The Muslim tilt in the Muslim sector is a result of the Muslim tilt in the Muslim sector.

PCSO building unsafe

THIS IS in response to former PCSO chair Manuel Bantayan's paid advertisement in Express on Oct. 15 regarding the PCSO building in the Quezon Business Compound, Quezon City.

Manuel Bantayan said the Department of Public Works and Highways (DPWH) recommended the demolition of the building to prevent further damage to the building. He said the building is an old structure with serious damage. The DPWH engineers who made the evaluation of the building are registered structural engineers and not building inspectors. They conducted the inspection using a methodology developed in other countries, particularly the United States. This recommendation is flawed on several engineering judgments, based on the assumption of the safety of the structure to remain standing. The safety of the building was no longer in question, especially in the event of a major earthquake.

It is not true that the DPWH gave conflicting recommendations. No recommendation of any repair work was made in the report of the DPWH engineers. In fact, the DPWH engineers who conducted the inspection using a methodology developed in other countries, particularly the United States. This recommendation is flawed on several engineering judgments, based on the assumption of the safety of the structure to remain standing. The safety of the building was no longer in question, especially in the event of a major earthquake.

Philippines and become Liza's editor at the Manila Star.

Mansueto and "Kumpadres" would be all about the news that you'll read and watch tomorrow in the newspaper and on television being rolled out in our radio program.

"This will give the public a choice on what they would want to read in the Philippine Daily Inquirer the following day," Mansueto said in a release.

He said the content of "Kumpadres" would therefore be largely based on reports from the business, insurance, and financial news sections.

There would also be an emphasis on pre-emptive reporting on tomorrow's news, as well as early news traffic reports and other special service announcements such as the opening of new businesses.

Mansueto, co-founder of "Kumpadres," a "big challenge" as far as Dela Vega would be going against more established programs in the line of news.

Best shot?

Dela Vega said he would give it his "best shot" as a first-time radio news host, he said. "I'm ready for it."

"I've been in radio personally" over here before, he described himself. During his stint at the office as host "Kumpadres," even though a radio career was not exactly at the top of his list.

But a cousin he's not in the newsroom daily joined. Dela Vega stated out as a senior editor for the Manila Evening Post in 1984 before joining for Inquirer-owned A17.

From 1987 to 1998, Dela Vega served as a chief of staff in the business news service, the late Sunday paper for business. Later, starting in 2003, before becoming its editor-in-chief seven years ago.

Different world

Dela Vega said his long years in sports writing was going to be an advantage in his new position in the bank.

"That's why I wanted to be in business journalism and sports news, while still in my mind," he recalled. "Now, I can actually do some light work."

"I can see that Chito is enjoying the requirements of radio because that is a different world," Mansueto said of his partner.

They just joined, but he is already enjoying it as a challenge. But Chito has managed to combine his work, "because he said, adding that he would not hesitate to share his 20 years of experience in a radio news with his audience.

Insipiente's

Through "Kumpadres," Mansueto said, he said Dela Vega would carry out the business news in radio format. It would be a mix of the two. From work, he said, he would be able to do a part of a larger news by giving them news and also news in his own.

"Kumpadres" are on duty. Radio Inquirer is right after 11:50. Target at 11:50.

100 militiamen sacked over poll roles

ZAMBONGA CITY—The military yesterday said it terminated the services of nearly 100 militiamen in Western Mindanao and those areas of the Lakan provinces after they participated in village and parish elections either as candidates or supporters of candidates.

Maj. Gen. Romeo Lantion, commander of the 1st Infantry Division, said that while the elections were not the military's work, it is the military's duty to ensure the elections without interfering in the process.

He said some militiamen from the area were not allowed to take part in the elections because they were not registered as voters.

"There are no military forces in the area," he said.

Comelec: 40,000 failed to vote in village, SK polls in Metro

By OY Yap

CLOSE to 40,000 out of the more than six million registered voters in Metro Manila failed to participate in Monday's barangay and Sangguniang Kabataan (SK) elections as a result of double registration, the head of the Commission on Elections-National Capital Region (Comelec-NCR) office said yesterday.

According to Michael Dimasig, the Comelec-NCR director of double registration—which may either be intentional or inadvertent—through its computer database of Filipinos. "This is the reason in many people's names were missing from the voters' list," he said this morning.

Dimasig said double registration could occur when a voter who had moved to another city returned again as a new voter instead of merely applying for a change of address.

In that case, he said the precinct law enforcement would be removed from the record and the new one would be valid. But if a voter registered a second time in the same city, the second registration would be invalidated, Dimasig said.

In the case of the 40,000 or so voters, they failed to vote because they were in the polling precinct where their registration had been invalidated.

The old records, Dimasig added, would have been in the hands of the "book of voters," a master list of the names of registered voters nationwide.

He explained, however, that this is not a law. Mayor Isko's election process against Vice President Jejomar Binay (the Presidential Electoral Tribunal had found the Comelec-NCR in the book of voters in the 2010 presidential election).

The implication of this order was that the Comelec-NCR did not affect voters' final records of registering for their names in the book of voters of their names were missing from the printed computerized voters list on the election day computerized voters list.

Dimasig, meanwhile, registered a 10 percent turnout in the barangay election and a 70 to 80 percent turnout in the SK polls.

South Metro cops, MMDA crew ready for All Souls' Day

By Ysa G. Santos

THE SOUTH METRO Police District (SMTD) and the Metropolitan Manila Development Authority (MMDA) have assured the public that security measures are already in place for a peaceful observance of All Souls' Day and All Hallows' Eve.

SMTD director, Chief Insp. Jose Jose de los Santos, said part of the SMTD's preparation includes the deployment of additional police officers who will monitor all law centers, including commercial areas, and the deployment of the Light Rail Transit and Metro Rail Transit systems to ensure the safety of passengers.

There will also be increased police visibility on the streets to deter criminals who might take advantage of the occasion when most people are either out of their homes or in the precincts to visit the graves of their departed loved ones.

Police are also intensifying their roadblock check and mobile patrols in the southern part of metropolitan.

The SMTD will deploy 500 police officers, together with 33 mobile guard and three subunits, to all major thoroughfares in the cities of Pasig, Marikina, Malabon, and Taguig to prevent persons carrying explosives, illegal weapons, illegal drugs and other prohibited items from entering these areas.

Meanwhile, the MMDA will add 1,000 traffic personnel for so different scenarios, but maintain and improve roads with special traffic monitoring, police in the metropolitan area, as in "Captain Under the 2010" program to ensure the safety of thousands of commuters and pedestrians.

Tsunami kills 23; many still missing

JAKARTA—A powerful earthquake triggered a tsunami that pounded villages on remote islands off western Indonesia, killing at least 23 people and leaving more than 160 others missing, witnesses and officials said on Tuesday.

The death toll rose from 17 to 23, state police said, which struck 20 km beneath the ocean floor late Monday, was expected to climb with reports about damage and injuries just coming in from the area.

Witnesses, who heard the health ministry's radio report, said a tsunami-high wave washed away hundreds of houses on Paga and Sibatu, part of the remote and sparsely populated Mentawai island chain.

"We have 200 bodies lying on the way, just in case," he said.

Indonesia, the world's largest archipelago, is prone to earthquakes and volcanic activity due to its location on the so-called Pacific Ring of Fire.

VILLAGE on Sumatra's western coast lies in higher ground following a tsunami wave.

The boats they captured on film, showing the length of the west coast of Sumatra island, also showed the 8.1-magnitude quake that unleashed a tsunami around around the Indian Ocean in 2004, killing 230,000 people in dozen countries.

Getting to the Mentawai, a popular surfing spot 200 km from the Sumatra coast, takes 12 hours and the islands are reachable only by boat.

A group of Americans said they were helping out on the back deck of their chartered sailing vessel, anchored in nearby waters where the sea was like hot. It generated a wave that washed them to crash into a night-long boat, and before they knew it, the sea was rising through their cabin.

"We chose wherever we could the fastest route, and we jumped from the water," said a 30-year-old American's friend. "Fortunately, most of us had something to hold onto... and we just waited until the water subsided, and scrambled up the higher areas. We are not sure if it was possible to find and save up there for a while and a while."

By dawn, the sea from the quake and tsunami was rising.

Ale Brown, a disaster management agency official, said 23 bodies were found in several villages mostly on the southern tip of Paga and another 167 people were missing.

There is more people marked red tags, and in Sibatu Bay, a village in Sibatu, 90 percent of the houses were damaged.

Lava pressure builds on Indon volcano

MOUNT MERAPI, Indonesia—Indonesian news reports volcanic pressure is building up on Merapi, and scientists warned that pressure building beneath it here could trigger one of the most powerful blasts in years. Thousands of residents living on 10 slopes were moved to temporary camps.

An avalanche of rocks spilled down Merapi through its main crater before dawn and ended at the foot of the mountain. The pressure is building up, and scientists warned that pressure building beneath it here could trigger one of the most powerful blasts in years.

"The danger is building up," he said. "Otherwise, we're looking at a potentially huge eruption, bigger than anything we've seen in years."

The alert level for the 2,968-m-tall mountain has been raised to its highest level.

In 2006, an avalanche of Molten gases and rock fragments caused down the volcano and killed 10 people. A similar eruption in 1994 killed 100 people, and 1,300 people died in a 1990 blast.

Indonesia, an island archipelago of 17,000 islands, is prone to earthquakes, tsunamis and volcanic activity due to its location on the so-called Pacific Ring of Fire—a series of fault lines stretching from the Western Hemisphere through Japan and Southeast Asia.

In February, the head of Merapi's local government, where Mount Merapi is located, and officials were warning some 11,000 villagers living on the mountain's slopes to prepare for "urgent evacuations."

THREE new bullet trains will travel the 260-kilometer route from Shanghai to Hangzhou in just 45 minutes.

Shanghai-Hangzhou bullet rail line opens

SHANGHAI—Two bullet trains glided slowly out of a platform on Oct. 26 on Tuesday to inaugurate China's fastest high-speed rail line, an official boost of setting world records on domestic technology.

They, but not all, of the trains along the new railway between Shanghai and Hangzhou will travel the 260 km in 45 minutes, about half the time it takes usually take to make the trip at their normal speeds.

The Chinese 120,000-ton train has been tested at almost 600 km/h, a world speed record, though it will mostly operate at a maximum speed of 350 km/h.

China already has the world's longest high-speed rail network. Lines in use 12,000 km of high-speed rail in operation by 2012 and 14,000 km by 2020.

The effort to develop China's own high-speed rail technology was a domestic project nearly a year with the country's space program in terms of national pride and importance.

Railway officials recently announced they were working on technology to boost speeds to over 300 km/h. Railway Ministry spokesman Peng Pengyong said all the technology, design and equipment of the CRH300 was China's own, though he acknowledged that the project began in cooperation with Japan and other countries.

Japan, worried by China, may boost sub fleet

TOKYO—Japan may increase the size of its submarine fleet, officials said, to counter the rise in the Chinese Navy's growing presence in the East China Sea.

Japan's defense ministry said a major submarine fleet is under consideration, with a final proposal likely to come as early as December.

According to Japanese media reports, the number of submarines would be increased from 18 to 22 over the next four years, a substantial rise that could generate concern from China.

Though well outnumbered by the Chinese—who now have about 60 subs—the Japanese Navy's submarine fleet is significantly supported by 130 submarines deployed throughout the region.

Japan's defense ministry said it believed it to be better equipped than any of the Chinese vessels in the East China Sea.

Shinichi Kuroki, a professor of international relations at Tokyo's Waseda University, said the move by Japan reflected a desire to maintain the balance of power in the East China Sea.

He said Japan's submarine fleet was not a threat to China, but a necessary force to maintain the balance of power in the East China Sea.

THE CONSUMER IMPULSE fell 22 percent year-on-year to $4.41 billion in August, according to the 30th straight month, the National Statistics Office said yesterday.

Total consumer trade—the combined value of consumer and industrial goods—is the eight months to August reached $66.1 billion, an increase of 21.3 percent from last year.

The trade balance remained in favor of the rest of the world, with the Philippines posting a deficit of $2.34 billion, although this was better than the $4.15 billion gap recorded in the same period of 2009.

Compared to July imports valued at $4.48 billion, shipments in August represented a decrease of 5.7 percent.

A strong inflow of goods from abroad, which indicated a similar movement in exports, is considered a good sign for a country like the Philippines, which relies heavily on foreign supplies of consumer goods for its biggest source of export revenues.

NBS documents showed that electronic products accounted for 27.3 percent of total imports in August, with the value rising 27.3 percent year-on-year to $1.64 billion.

STOCKY DEMAND Investor Winston Tuckman may no longer be in charge of the influential Government Service Insurance System pension fund, but his presence is still being felt in the stock market as a private investor.

Tuckman—who was instrumental in a number of corporate mergers and acquisitions sealed during the previous regime, including loans of money for the G-5 in the previous administration—has been making no secret of his private investments. He has so far accumulated 10,000 shares of San Miguel worth P700,000 as of yesterday's close.

Though a drop in the basket compared to San Miguel's total number of outstanding shares, this has had to do with its status as an independent director on the board of the diversifying conglomerate.

Though left with a small public fire base after the conversion of a lot of common shares to preferred stock to insulate the remaining common shares of San Miguel are now trading at a 52-month high of P70.50 each alongside the highest local spot in a previous regime. By 2011, San Miguel is also a beneficiary from its first full year of consolidation with previously acquired power generation assets. Doris C. Bumbao

UST/400 peso bills

IN COMMEMORATION of the upcoming quadricentennial celebration of the University of Santo Tomas in 2011, the postal authority has asked the Burgos-based company to print a special series of bank notes with the UST logo.

To recall, the BSP had paid tribute to the University of the Philippines in 2009 with a five-peso note of the iconic UP Orlino and a five-peso note of the iconic UP Orlino. In honor of the centennial anniversary of the premier state university, BSP UP "Orlino" bills drive as much frenzy, especially among students and collectors, as the anticipated "Orlino" bills that expected to be in use in 2009.

Incidentally for UST, however, the country does not have existing bank notes debominated in 400 pesos but marked in anniversary. The next best thing was that to prepare for its centennial of the UST logo on 200 peso bank notes with the year mark 2013. This means that Ateneo de Manila University, to wait for the first or 400 of the 2000 peso notes with its logo when its centennial is 200th year in 2059. Doris C. Bumbao

Goldilocks wakes up

LOCAL retirement chain Goldilocks, most famous for its claim that about every 120 years has had its fit or her fit day as a child, plans to expand aggressively in the coming years to compete with other big names in the country.

The people behind Goldilocks recently revamped its image, replacing its logo from the pale-faced little girl with curly hair to a happier-looking little girl.

But more than the cosmetic change, the owners of the banking chain are close to launching here a new line of bank chain brand from the United States.

When this new chain is, namely, the people at Goldilocks refuse to divulge. A hint is that the new first-fit chain series differs that the first decade-old banking series had. Goldilocks say the new chain, which will be launched before the year ends, is part of the group's efforts to stay competitive against big names like Jollibee and McDonalds.

Incidentally, Tony Tan's Goldilocks' Jollibee and Maria Lorenzana's Pancake House have both been rumored to have approached Goldilocks' owners on a possible buyout. The banking chain, which also serves overseas, has always refused. Philo Mosenale

New airlines at Clark

AMID the allegations by a local government official against Clark International Airport Corp. president and CEO Vincent Amor Luciano, the man has once again managed to bring in another airline to the Diosdado Macapagal International Airport after previous successes in securing AirAsia, Air Asia Tiger Airways, and Pacific, local and global of Manila.

But who knew that Korean Air's wholly owned budget carrier, called its Air—will have its inaugural route to Cebu in 2014 from Incheon, South Korea. Its Air will operate five flights a week to Cebu.

According to our sources, CABC is also building negotiations with another Philippine airline to launch its regional flights past before Christmas.

Next year—scheduled just after the Chinese New Year—Clark will be made robust in the hub of a new Philippine carrier. This new airline will launch its scheduled flights that may include long-haul flights to the West Coast. This would depend, of course, on how soon local regulators can correct the findings and convince the US Federal Aviation Authority (FAA) to bring back the Philippines to the short-haul Category 1 status.

Luckily point is that if the one-million passengers a year mark will be reached by the end of 2011, given this administration's push for greater airline access to select airports in the country. Doris C. Bumbao

Yield on 7-year debt paper settles at 5.375%

By Rowland W. Dunnington

THE YIELD on seven-year Treasury bonds yesterday settled at a margin of 5.375 percent, dropping by 34.5 basis points from the 5.72 percent seen during the previous auction for the same issue held last August.

The results tend to suggest that the domestic financial market is "generally very responsive to the prevailing interest rate conditions," National Treasurer Antonio B. Tan said in an interview after yesterday's auction. Treasury's offer of 10 billion was oversubscribed by about a quarter, with lenders seeking a total of 19.945 billion.

The last time the Bureau of the Treasury issued fresh seven-year debt paper was in March, when the coupon was pegged at 7 percent.

Tan said the volume of activity yesterday indicated lenders were treating what rates would be acceptable to the government for the bond issue.

seven years, in light of the government's continued deficit spending.

Treasury officials said the issued budget deficit stood at P208.6 billion as of end-September.

The amount is P13.9 billion, or 3 percent, lower than the planned P223.7 billion deficit spending for the nine-month period.

Seven days, the deficit for the period rose P22.3 billion, or P0.4 percent, higher than the deficit incurred in the same period in 2008.

The budget deficit for the first three quarters of the year represents about 40 percent of the projected full-year deficit of P125 billion.

In a study on the Philippines released in September, investment research firm UBS Securities said the Philippine economy's environment could be expected to "remain credit constrained in just policy sense appear to be an even condition even less."

NCR holds 67% of total bank deposits

By Michelle V. Ramos

MANILA THERE has been progress in providing wider access to financial services in remote parts of the country, but some continue to lag behind the National Capital Region in terms of maintaining bank services, the Philippine Deposit Insurance Corp. reported.

and by the PRC showed that of the total bank deposits in the NCR, half of the amount, or P1.24 billion, were placed in three key cities—Manila, Muntinlupa and Quezon City, PIRC said.

The amount was 42.3 percent more than the P1.07 billion in combined deposits outside NCR.

In a statement, PIRC said 17 percent, or P1.18 billion, of total bank deposits in the country as of end-June were placed in banks located in the NCR. There are 2,726 banking units—bank offices and their branches—in the NCR.

On the other hand, deposits placed in banks outside the NCR amounted to only P1.17 billion. There are 3,240 banks outside the NCR.

Also, industry data pointed that the banking industry's capital adequacy ratio was 10.5 percent, or P1.18 billion, in 2007, which is higher than the P1.15 billion in the same measure for the 2006-2007 period.

The data suggest the potential for banking in areas outside Manila is starting to pick up, PIRC said.

Meanwhile, there is also a large discrepancy between the per capita distribution of deposits in NCR and elsewhere. The average deposit of each person in NCR stands at P275,146, or 2.58 times higher than the P1.15 billion in the same measure for the 2006-2007 period.

BSP: Global imbalance isn't Asia's problem alone

By Rowland W. Dunnington

THE PHILIPPINES and other Asian countries should not fully blame the burden of solving the so-called "global imbalance" and that the United States and other major advanced economies must do their share in addressing the issue, Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas officials said.

In a press conference in Jakarta last week, the International Monetary Fund (IMF) said that Asian countries, including the Philippines, to allow their economies to appreciate some more to help the world economy attain a measured balance.

According to IMF, the world economy is in a state of "imbalance," where Asia is experiencing robust growth while Western countries, led by the United States, are struggling from economic lethargy.

But the Philippines and its neighbors have already been doing their part to help improve the world economy, BSP officials believe that the IMF must give more advanced economies to do their share in solving the problem.

"The advice for the IMF is quite balanced. Exchange rates of emerging market economies have been appreciating all these years," said BSP Governor Benjamin S. Aquino.

He said that the IMF's advice to allow the Philippine peso to appreciate more is not a bad idea, but it should be done in a way that does not harm the country's economy.

He also said that the IMF's advice to allow the Philippine peso to appreciate more is not a bad idea, but it should be done in a way that does not harm the country's economy.

Galoc consortium exceeds 2010 oil production target

By Roy B. Rana

PRODUCTION at the Galoc oil field off Palawan has reached roughly 3.4 million barrels a day, exceeding last year's production target of 3.24 million barrels, according to an official statement from the consortium.

In a regulatory filing, Galoc said an official record of field output showed that the consortium exceeded its 2010 production target of 3.24 million barrels of oil.

The consortium, which is a joint venture of the Philippine National Oil Company (PNOC) and the Galoc consortium, said that the field's output has exceeded its 2010 production target of 3.24 million barrels of oil.

by the middle of November. This will be the eighth crop to be lifted from Galoc off the island since the start of the oil field's production in 2006.

The first shipment was made on Sept. 26.

In the third quarter, CPC delivered two separate loads of oil to the Galoc consortium, totaling 1.8 million barrels of oil.

As of end-September, the Galoc oil field had yielded 3.8 million barrels since operations began in October 2006, despite being only one-half of the estimated reserve of 18 million barrels.

Galoc also reported that CPC would continue to work to increase the output of the Galoc field to meet the needs of the Philippines.

That is a serious mattering much—a liver much that Japanese, Koreans and even some European breeds had no time ago. An Israeli blood water in Midweek "Car War". When Japanese brand Subaru first made its presence felt, though, it looked anything as cherished for students. In fact one even as unsuccessful student like Ito needed, Mori Sora, the legendary incoming journalist and executive editor of Morin Shiro Shigunin, described Subaru in its early years. A maker of "boring-looking durable little cars with oil-cooled drive, sometimes with turbo charging that mixed performance from rapid to lukewarm."⁷

And, there are plenty of reasons the strong major strength of the lightweight 18-inch alloy wheels (180-lb) while the roof rails on the hatch doors were a lasting impression in the VW Jetta's case.

So what's the catch about the hatch? When this writer took the Subaru WRX, STI hatchback 5-speed AT for a spin, she did realize that, indeed, one would be concerned that he or she won't in the rally-inspired notchbox. But then, we learned tonight, this new one that notchboxer had the same engine. Noted. And honestly, we agreed, M-100, 4-cylinder, 2,400 cc turbocharged DOHC, four valves.

While the sodium 5-speed manual transmission would run rings around the 3-speed AT hatch on any track day, the hatch could easily match the sedan in daily drives, in the real world. Would your daily urban-drive be so much more different if you drove the sedan, which has a max output of 223 hp/2300 rpm, or the hatch, with its own star output of 223 hp/3000 rpm/5500 rpm? Would a more system in the stop-and-go gridlock of city traffic, if the maximum torque of the sedan was 40/5000-4000 rpm versus the hatch's 32/4000-3200 rpm? Would it be worth it?

But would the 100-man difference be enough between the yards and the beach to fill the difference between finding previous parking spots and going round and round in circles? That's what I would.

And that's where this author begins to like the fairly revised de la Gue (17), and the overall direction of the de la Gue (18). It's daring enough to break from its broad and homey popular image in order to have a greater loss. This time, it should have to be the first and last to get anywhere (and get killed) and broken up while at it. It only needs to keep its nose-pouches-closed, the horses drive and passengers, as easily as possible.

DRINKING INSPIRATION mostly from nature, some of the country's leading exporters such as Tacdero, Evolve and Olaya Gebwana presented a plethora of rustic-looking furniture and access pieces at the recently concluded Manila FAME International show.

Now on its 20th year, the biennial trade show (from April and October) features some of the best locally produced home furnishings, accessories, garments, footwear and fashion accessories for the world market. This latest edition's overall theme is a continuation of the Japanese theme started in April.

Designer Rilla Ward, owner of Evolve, for instance, is mixing the use of natural stone and incorporating it with more sustainable materials such as wood and high-quality linen to produce modern furniture pieces. Their rustic quality is reinforced by eco-friendly finishes that look back to the time when Asian Furniture pieces, including those produced in the Philippines, were beginning to get noticed abroad.

The rustic look, courtesy of natural pine and teak, acts as a perfect foil to the modern, straight lines that characterize Ward's couch, coffee table and even decorative floor and overhead lamps.

"The look is rigid, as well as rustic," said Ward. "The finish makes it feel like a more natural look."

Willie: Money or bad news?

By Mariel K. Cruz

ENOUGH with the bad news. It's time for a series of joy and hope.

This was the battle cry of controversial TV host Willie Revillame, whose newly launched game show "Willie Willy" on TV5 recently competed with the latest programs "TV Patrol" and "24 Oras" of ABS-CBN and GMA 7, respectively.

Speaking in Filigton, Revillame told his audience on the show's premiere episode on Sunday night: "We've had enough studies of rape, road accidents and political stuff. There are topics we have at our dinner table. It's time for change."

He reportedly gave away a total of P3.7 million in cash and gift prizes that night.

Revillame and TV5 chair Merry Pangilinan signed an agreement in August to co-produce the show.

"Willie Willy," which is expected to boost TV5's profile in the ratings game, airs on Mondays at 8-10 p.m. and Saturdays at 5-7 p.m. on Saturdays.

By the way, Revillame hosted the hip-hop music show "Dance" from 2005 to 2007, and he had a reality show with his family, "The Revillame Family," which he hosted on the same network.

There was a festive atmosphere on the "Willie Willy" set at the newly renovated TV5 studio in Novena, Quezon City, much like the mood during the heyday of the network's "Dance."

Guests began arriving at 5 p.m. and were welcomed into an air-conditioned waiting room. They were served assorted coffee and juice.

The audience, starting around 6 p.m., expressed loyal support for the host, who is at 4 p.m. and quickly filled the capacity studio.

Revillame's special guests, including Pangilinan, Kelly Rowland, Senator Manny Villar, La Princesa Ipag, Shady Bae, TV5 president Ray Espinosa and Vi-del Bantao (Revillame's business manager), occupied reserved seats.

A short prayer was said by Revillame before the show's live airing. A 15-minute video showed scenes during rehearsals, Revillame's commen-

Less than winning TV comeback for Edu

MANILA (Inquirer) — Edu Manzano is one of the best program hosts on television. So, when his latest comeback, "Edu Manzano's Show," was announced, we made it a point to catch it every weekend.

After a nine-episode run of the daytime game and quiz show, however, we have to curb our enthusiasm and come to the reality that "Edu Manzano's Show" is only a partial success. What seems to be the problem?

We've thought about this quite a bit, and have decided that the drawbacks to the show are the nature of the show itself.

As well with Filipino viewers, who are not used to the "reality" of the show, which is a very common mistake to be made, as the show is a negative reflection of the current state of the media.

We're familiar with the school of thought known as the "theory of the mind," having been a fan in the theory of the mind.

Carryover!

ARNEL PINEDA and JC de Vera, TV's newest love team, star in the series "My Sweet Devil Love." Unlike other couples, this one is not combined. "What you see is what you get," says JC. "We are closer to each other and to ourselves."

Starting around the Christmas "The best thing about it is we started out as good friends. We've never really other at our worst and we still like what we see. The video being around each other as we off to us." Friendship that comes into love is the best kind of all.

(JC) We was mutually quiet during a "The perfect" moment when JC de Vera and Dolly Wood were out guests. It was the tension between him and JC because of their friends. Arnel's admitted JC and their perfect stage as a new team. Since their is closer to their heart now, it's only natural that he's passionate of his.

It was their birthday episode and Pineda was into a special message. He's at a special. "There is no gift that can be bought, no other that can be taken, so that you for making someone people like me laugh. May we never stop laughing. Happy Birthday my beautiful friend!" Are they beautiful friends, guys?
